

I am in favor of satellite radio being able to give me traffic and weather reports. The local stations are difficult to find when travelling, and they give reports at their convenience. It is better for trip planning, short or long, to be able to get accurate traffic and weather reports when you can make changes, not when you are already stuck in the problem. Local traffic reporters assume that everyone knows the nicknames and locations of streets. Traffic Pulse gives me reporting that anyone can use, and understand. I strongly urge you to allow satellite radio to continue to provide this timely and accurate service.
